

T. Rowe Price Capital Opportunity

Investment Style:

Large Blend

Investment Objective:

Growth

Investment Strategy:

The investment seeks long-term capital appreciation. The fund uses a disciplined portfolio construction process whereby it weights each sector approximately the same as the S&P 500 index. The management selects stocks from the industries based on rigorous fundamental analysis that assesses the quality of the business franchise, earnings growth potential for the company, and stock valuation. While it invests the majority of assets in large-capitalization U.S. common stocks, the fund may also invest in small- and mid-capitalization and foreign stocks.

Fund Family:

T. Rowe Price

Inception Date:

11/30/1994

The performance figures represent past performance. Past performance does not guarantee future results. The investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Current performance may be lower or higher than the performance data quoted. Call toll-free at 800-638-5660 to obtain performance data current to the most recent month-end. Returns less than one year are cumulative. Performance prior to the inception date of the fund (if any) is based on returns of an older share class, which have been adjusted for expenses.

Equity funds, unlike bond funds, invest in equity securities, which include common stock, preferred stock and convertible securities. Because such securities represent ownership in a corporation, they tend to be more volatile than fixed income or debt securities, which do not represent ownership. The securities of small and medium-sized companies, because of the issuers' lower market capitalization, may be more volatile than those of large-sized companies. Foreign securities and markets pose different and possibly greater risks than those customarily associated with domestic securities, including currency fluctuations and political instability.
